Product description

DoorBird touch display module 7.0 inch

The 7″ touch display module for the DoorBird D31x IP video door station transforms the door intercom system into an elegant and convenient access and communication solution. The colour display is not only ultra-bright and easy to read even in direct sunlight, but also remains functional even in rain, snow or frost thanks to its weatherproof construction. The display can be customised: A resident directory with logos, a personalised welcome screen or tiles for quick access - all of this can be configured as required.

In terms of technology, the display module impresses with its reliable network connection via LAN and PoE+ (Power over Ethernet), which combines power supply and data transmission in a single cable. Two freely configurable bistable relays enable the control of electric door openers, gates or barriers - ideal for modern access and control systems. A Wiegand interface is available for integration into existing access or smart home systems. Modern access methods such as RFID, QR code or Bluetooth are also supported, allowing flexible and secure access control. A high-quality image sensor from the D31x series with full HD resolution provides the video and monitoring functions of the door station, delivering razor-sharp images regardless of the display module.

Thanks to this combination of flexible configuration, robust design and smart interfaces, the 7″ display module is suitable for single-family homes as well as apartment blocks, residential complexes or commercial properties - wherever convenience, security and individuality are required.
